This year marks the 50th anniversary of an iconic monthly French comics magazine. The perfect moment, therefore, for the publishers of Fluide Glacial to bring out a moving biography of the magazine's founder, Gotlib, a life in comic strip written by Arnaud LeGouëfflec, with drawings by Julien Solé. Together, writer and artist retrace the comic genius's exceptional career, decade by decade. Marcel Gotlib is one of the best-known names in the world of French comics. From Gai Luron to Rubrique-à-Brac, Les Dingodossiers to Hamster Jovial, Pervers Pépère to Superdupont, Rhââ Lovely to Rhââ gnagna, and not forgetting his autobiography, J'existe, je me suis rencontré, Gotlib's œuvre continues over the years to delight generations of readers of both genders. His career also coincides with the heyday of France's comics press, from Vaillant to Fluide Glacial, via Pilote and L'Écho des Savanes. In this biography of Marcel Gotlib, Julien Solé and Arnaud Le Gouëfflec successfully reveal the complexity and poignant humanity of the work of an extraordinary man, and its universal appeal.
